

ENGL 137: Some Extra Credit Opportunities: Fall 2015

What's it worth?

- It may provide a priceless experience, but extra credit is worth very few points in our class.
- Think of it more as a small incentive to attend a campus and/or community liberal-arts event.
 - (I know some films are online, but part of the goal is to support community events).
- It mainly benefits those who were absent from a quiz.
- Each extra credit has this minor grade impact (based on which one works best in your favor):
 - The grade of a missing quiz is raised from a zero to a B (80%).
 - The grade of any completed quiz is raised to an A (90%). (No increase given to scores above 90%)

How many can I do?

- You can get extra credit for up to three events.

What do I need to do?

- For extra credit, write a review of any event you attend. The review just needs to be specific enough to make it clear you attended the event. Films must be seen on campus, and reviews must also comment on the guest speaker(s) and/or discussion after the films. Type 2/3–1 page, double spaced, and simply write about this: What you saw and what you thought of it. Be honest and express your opinion.

When is it due?

- Turn in your review anytime within a week after the date of the event.

What can I write about? Below are some possibilities. More might be announced in class in the future.

- The Good Woman of Setzuan (Student Performance, MJC Main Auditorium, East Campus)
